INVESTING IN ART: AN EMOTIONAL JOURNEY

Investing in Art: An Emotional Adventure

At InRealArt, each piece is selected for its uniqueness and its power to meaningfully enrich your collection. Investing in art is far more than a simple purchase—it's a deeply personal journey filled with emotion and discovery”

Catherine Meulemans

A Dialogue Between Art and the Collector

“Acquiring a work of art is not merely a material act; it is a meaningful exchange between the artist and the collector. Every painting, every sculpture tells a unique story that resonates differently with each individual. Art holds this mysterious power to move us, inspire us, and spark personal reflection.”

Timothée Roy

A Flexible and Secure Approach to Investment

“By integrating cutting-edge technologies such as blockchain and NFTs, we ensure complete traceability of your artworks and their copyrights—offering unmatched security. Each piece is linked to an NFT that certifies its origin and uniqueness, while enabling diverse modes of utilization such as leasing, lending, or resale.

Thanks to this synergy between art and technology, discover new models for investing in and monetizing your collection.”

Who is Nadine Le Prince?

4

Nadine Le Prince, born in Paris, comes from a lineage of artists dating back to the 16th century, including Jean-Baptiste Le Prince, a painter at the Russian court in the 18th century and a friend of Diderot. From a young age, she showed a talent for drawing and quickly turned to oil painting, creating still lifes, landscapes, and portraits. At 17, she exhibited for the first time and joined the group of the Painters of Reality. Inspired by 17th-century painting, she modernizes this influence through composition and the choice of subjects.

4. Le Prince Nadine Carnet de Voyage (29 sketches, including 2 double-page spreads) 9 000 €

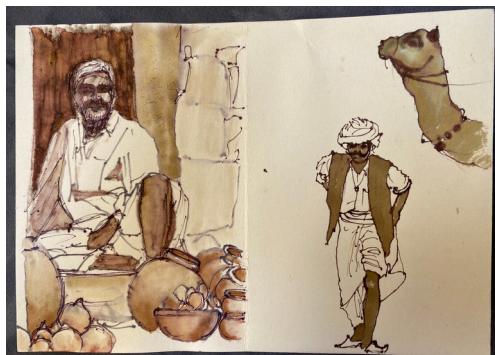

The Journey to the Heart of Her Art

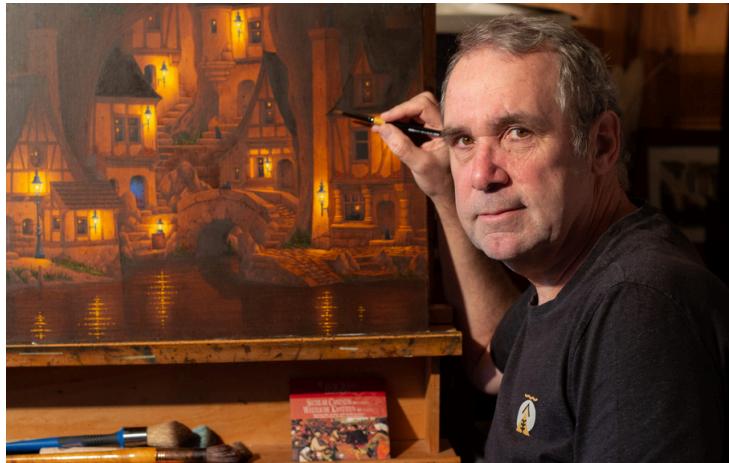

Dividing her time between France and India, she explores the contrast between these two civilizations, a source of both wonder and contemplation.

Her figurative painting, blending emotion and reflection, offers an appearance of three-dimensional reality, serving as a mirror of her inner self and a window into the external world.

Nadine Le Prince's creations have allowed her to exhibit multiple times around the world, thus marking her presence on the global contemporary art scene.

4. Le Prince Nadine Carnet de Voyage (29 croquis, dont 2 doubles pages) 9 000 €

2. Ekaterina Aristova Nueva Madre (2023, oil on canvas, approx. 47.2 x 33.9 in) on demand €

Qui est Ekaterina?

Ekaterina Aristova is a Franco-Russian painter, born on December 14, 1986, in Moscow. After studying economics at Moscow State University, she moved to Paris in 2009 to pursue her doctoral research. It was there that she met the painter Sergueï Toutounov, who encouraged her to explore the world of art. She studied at the Académie de la Grande Chaumière and the École nationale supérieure des beaux-arts in Paris, fully dedicating herself to painting from 2014 onwards. Founder of "unconscious art," an approach where chaotic abstraction takes form and meaning, Aristova creates works by drawing with her eyes blindfolded, revealing connections between personal unconsciousness and global events.

Jak Espi

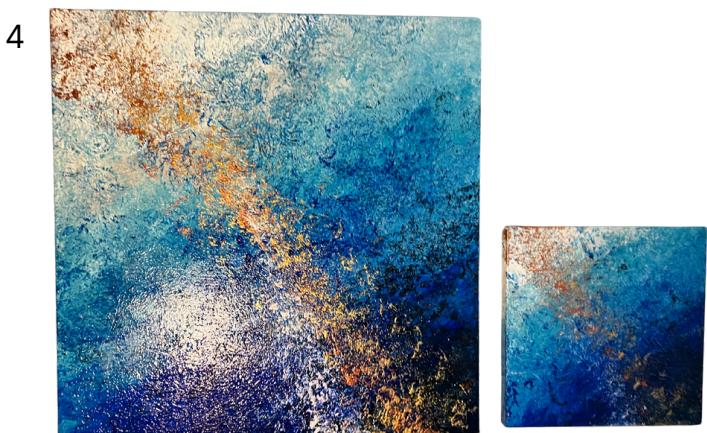

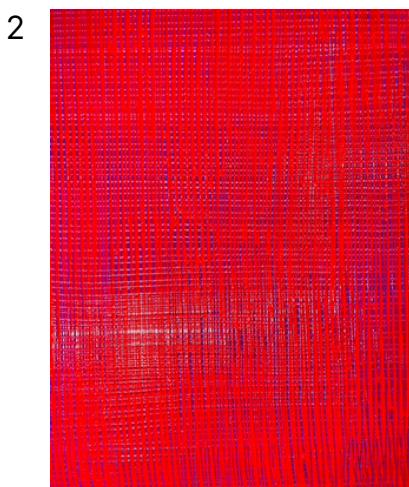

Jak Espi, born on December 10, 1966, in Salon de Provence, lives and works in Pelissanne. The son of a carpenter, he grew up in the family workshop, immersed in a culture of furniture-making, organization, and finishing. Passionate about illustration from a young age, he trained in Applied Arts in Marseille. His influences range from Picasso to Superdupont, and his art blends humor, provocation, and energy. Sculpture, particularly around the female body, naturally emerged in his career, with his material of choice being resin. Espi works on provocative themes, such as the representation of breasts, and has firmly established himself in Contemporary Art.

Qui est Ninu ?

Virginie Mariany, aka Ninu, is from the Alpes-Maritimes. Since she was young, she has enjoyed transforming and discovering new things. Her father taught her to stay curious about everything and her mother taught her to be independent and always let her ideas flow freely. A versatile individual, she is passionate about many topics, including motorcycles and abstract art.

It was after a serious motorcycle accident that she was forced to set aside this passion and dedicate herself to her next one... Full of life and ideas, she began creating, initially just to decorate her home. She shared her creations, and galleries soon reached out to exhibit her works.

Now, she participates in numerous openings, art markets, and exhibitions to share her artistic universe.

Who is Pierrick Her?

Born on March 6, 1946, in Dinard, Brittany (France), having lived in Paris for 25 years, and currently residing in Camargue, in the south of France. His entire life has been dedicated to the Arts. He attended the Fine Arts Schools of Rennes and Paris, as well as studying with Italian, Flemish, and German masters. He was a student of the painter Yves Brayer and the Hungarian painter Paul Maïk, before earning his Master's degree in Fine Arts. In 1978, he met the Grand Master Zao Wou-Ki at the Galliera Museum in Paris, and they later exhibited together at the "Salon des Surindépendants" at the Luxembourg Museum in 1978. Between 1977 and 1990, he focused on fantastic, symbolic, and surreal themes.

In 1985, he was invited by Salvador Dalí to the Port-Lligat Estate (Cadaqués, Spain) alongside Hans Rudolf Giger. The Grand Master Dalí taught him the technique of applying gold leaf on frames. His current paintings are primarily composed of abstract art and modern figurative art. He has also developed a unique technique in which he pours molten metal directly onto the canvas. He has won more than thirty national and international awards.

His works have been showcased in numerous international exhibitions, including in Shanghai, Germany, Canada, Egypt, the Netherlands, France, and several other countries. His artworks are part of numerous private collections around the world. Today, Pierrick HER focuses almost exclusively on abstract art and modern figurative art. His current research involves using mixed techniques, including molten metal from 250° to 1100°, combined with natural and chemical pigments on canvas.

Who is Catherine Sénéchal ?

Catherine Sénéchal, a self-taught French painter, began her artistic journey by reproducing the works of masters such as Caravaggio and Corot.

Art as a Family Legacy Growing up in a family of artists and musicians, Catherine Sénéchal was introduced to painting at the age of 15, after her parents gifted her her first canvases and brushes. Over the years, her style has evolved, yet her work still reflects themes centered on introspection, conveying human emotions, whether joy or sadness. Her ambition is to evoke an emotional reaction from the viewer, offering them a personal experience through her artwork.

Color at the Heart of Her Art

Catherine Sénéchal draws inspiration from the famous quote by Brancusi: "What you see makes you happy, everything is there." This philosophy is reflected in her vibrant use of color, which she associates with joy, vitality, and energy. She works with colors instinctively, creating visual harmonies through stylized and expressive forms.

Classical Music in Her Creative Process

Classical music also plays a key role in her creative process, with composers such as Glenn Gould, Mozart, Vivaldi, and opera influencing the atmosphere of her works. Catherine Sénéchal's creations have allowed her to exhibit several times across Europe, thus marking her presence on the contemporary art scene.

Tristan Saint Michel

Tristan Saint Michel is a French artist born in 1994. From a young age, he loved to draw, and at 25, he began painting. After several trips to Italy, particularly in Florence, Tristan became fascinated by the great Renaissance masters such as Domenico Ghirlandaio, Giorgione, Botticelli, and Raphael, which led him to master oil painting and glazing techniques.

Passionate about animals, he often depicts them in natural settings, combining elegance and vitality. Tristan seeks to celebrate their beauty and harmony with nature, creating a universe filled with softness and grace.

Daniel Castan

Born in Dordogne in 1959, Daniel Castan graduated from the Beaux-Arts of Bordeaux and initially pursued a successful career as a graphic designer before dedicating himself entirely to painting at the age of 48.

Inspired by his travels to New York and Hong Kong, his works capture the energy of urban landscapes, with vertiginous perspectives, vibrant colors, and dynamic compositions.

Using alkyd oil and a palette knife, Castan creates richly textured pieces that blend memory, imagination, and the essence of city life.

Jean-Pierre Baldini

Jean-Pierre Baldini, sculptor born in 1949 in Cannes, of Tuscan origin, began wood carving at the age of 16 alongside the Spanish artist Almela and took courses at the Beaux-Arts in Nîmes. His first exhibition took place in 1968 at the town hall of Arles.

After 17 years of working with wood, Baldini shifted his focus to bronze in 1985, a material he particularly enjoys. His works, known for their clean lines and elegance, explore various themes such as movement, femininity, and balance. These sculptures have been exhibited both in France and internationally, including at the Palais des Nations in Geneva in 2000.

"The Scribe" is the ancient term for a writer. This sculpture depicts a woman calmly seated on large white pages, perhaps rolls stacked on top of each other. She holds a golden quill and writes a book, embodying the fundamental role of "writing history."

But is she writing her own story, the story of others, or inventing it?

Once the words are written, they take on a new dimension, acquiring greater value and becoming a memory accessible to all. Through her act, the writer freezes time and gives meaning to events.

Baldini expresses this mission with great delicacy. In contemplating this work, one feels a profound softness and infinite inspiration. It is something one never tires of.

The works in Jean-Pierre Baldini's "TRACE" series lead us to draw a parallel with those of the Lascaux caves. Surprising, captivating, enigmatic, they concentrate the artist's entire creativity into eight double-faced sculptures, where the invisible plays with the unspoken. The primary drawing, simple and executed with finesse, transforms through a series of complex actions, moving from 2D to 3D and incorporating various materials – earth, plaster, bronze – before ultimately returning to its origin. This work thus reveals the timelessness of knowledge transmission through the imprint, giving full meaning to our humanity.

Jean-Pierre Baldini delicately explores a theme close to his heart: balance.

In this sculpture, both airy and grounded, he harmoniously fuses this concept with that of freedom. True to his sensitive and poetic approach, he shapes an elongated silhouette, with sleek curves that seem to rise gracefully. The lower part of the body, expanding into a flared base resembling a train or outstretched wings, reinforces the impression of lightness and suspended movement.

With his always sensual touch, the artist invites us to a contemporary reflection on our freedoms and their limits. Created between 2019 and 2020, a pivotal period marked by profound upheavals, this work embodies the duality between grounding and soaring, between constraint and emancipation.

Isabelle Miramontes

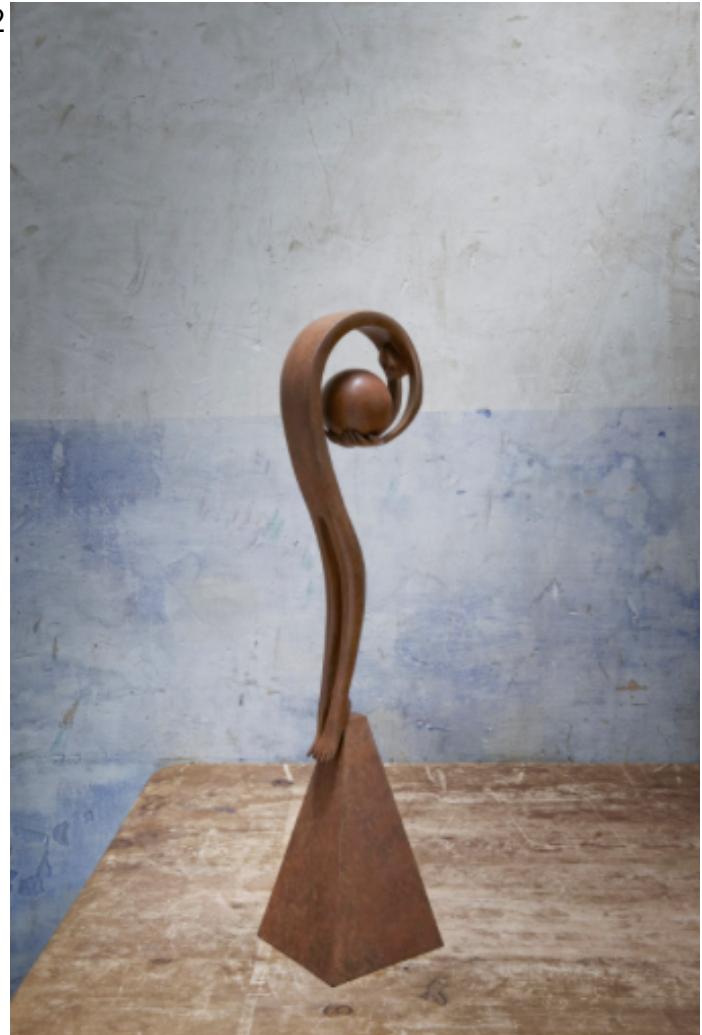

Isabel Miramontes sculpts figures in bronze with a warm patina, blending abstraction and realism. Her works explore the delicate balance between form and void, distilling matter to its most essential form while evoking profound emotions. With sleek, often fragmented or sliced figures, she symbolizes the transient nature of existence, both physical and spiritual.

Her sculptures have been featured in prestigious collections worldwide, including "Waiting for" at the Ritz-Carlton in Dubai, "Origin" at the Four Seasons in Mauritius, and "Intimidad" at The Murray in Hong Kong.

Béatrice Cols

After studying art and working for 13 years as an advertising graphic designer in Brussels, Béatrice Cols decided in 1987 to dedicate herself entirely to her art.

Initially through oil painting, she embarked on a journey exploring colors, light, and movement.

Eventually, she naturally transitioned to sculpture, primarily working with bronze.

With charm and sensitivity, she delves into the world of childhood and music, capturing the gentle, happy moments of daily life.

Her work is a tribute to birth, childhood, and life itself, celebrating the beauty of human existence.

Paola Grizi

Paola Grizi, an Italian sculptor, was introduced to art as a child by her renowned painter and sculptor grandfather. She studied classical literature and earned a degree in Italian literature with honors before working in journalism while pursuing her passion for sculpture, particularly in terracotta and bronze. Her works, often featuring faces emerging from books, have been exhibited in various Italian and international cities. She won the 3rd International Ceramics Competition in Ascoli Piceno in 2014 and was invited to the International Ceramics Symposiums in Changchun, China, in 2014 and 2015. In 2015, she received the Special Public Prize at the 35th International CICA Competition in L'Alcora, Spain, and served on the jury in 2016. That same year, she was selected for a contemporary art project at St. Peter's Church in Cologne, in collaboration with the Pontifical Gregorian University and the Kunst-Station of Cologne.

So du Sud

So du Sud (Solange Borrelli) draws inspiration from the nature of her hometown, Marseille. From a young age, she created characters using materials like wood, leaves, and pebbles collected during her walks. Her work combines geometry and sensuality, utilizing light to bring her sculptures to life. After studying visual arts and physical education, she discovered sculpture in Françoise Hamel's workshop, where she refined her style over ten years, exploring materials such as clay, wood, stone, and resin.

Her work is characterized by its harmony with nature and the use of various materials to create unique, light-infused sculptures.
